

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF OPHTHALMOLOGISTS

DUKE ELDER PRIZE EXAMINATION 2019

The ROYAL COLLEGE of OPHTHALMOLOGISTS

INFORMATION FOR CANDIDATES

Please read the following information carefully

This examination is intended for medical students who have completed their ophthalmology undergraduate teaching, but it is open to all medical undergraduates provided they have not graduated at the time of the examination.

Students may take the examination on more than one occasion provided they have not yet graduated and have not previously won the prize.

All candidates will receive their percentage score and decile ranking. Candidates within the top 10% will receive a certificate and the top 20 will receive special commendation – this is in the form of a letter signed by the President of the Royal College of Ophthalmologists, sent to each medical school.

The 2 hour examination will be held on Wednesday 6 March 2019 at 2.30pm.

Candidates should liaise with the medical school organiser if they wish to sit this examination. The College is only able to accept applications via medical schools in the British Isles. We are not able to accept individual applications.

Candidates must ensure that they have given their name to their medical school organiser prior to the closing date of Monday 10 December 2018. No candidates will be accepted after this date. Medical school organisers will submit the names of their medical students wishing to sit the examination to the Royal College of Ophthalmologists. Candidates will then be sent instructions on how to pay the examination fee. The deadline for fee payment is 5pm on Tuesday 8 January 2019. Candidates who have not paid their fee by this date will not have a place at the exam. Examination fees should not be submitted to your medical school.

THE DUKE-ELDER UNDERGRADUATE PRIZE IN OPHTHALMOLOGY

An undergraduate prize examination will be sponsored again this year on a national basis by The Royal College of Ophthalmologists. This examination is intended for medical students who have completed their ophthalmology undergraduate teaching, but it is open to all medical undergraduates provided they have not graduated at the time of the examination.

Students may sit the examination on more than one occasion provided they have not yet graduated and have not previously won the prize. The candidate gaining the highest mark will be offered to chance to visit St John's Eye Hospital in Jerusalem. The winning candidate can alternatively choose a cash prize of £400. There is no second prize.

The two hour examination consists of:

90 one in four Multiple Choice Questions (MCQs)

Marking is on the basis of +1 for a correct answer and 0 marks for an incorrect answer (i.e. there is no negative marking).

Mobile phones, calculators and other electronic devices are not permitted. This includes the use of "Smart Watches".

The standard is high and candidates should anticipate a stiffer examination than they may encounter in their own university's undergraduate examinations in ophthalmology. Questions are mostly based on clinical ophthalmology but other areas covered include ocular physiology, anatomy and pathology as well as genetics of eye conditions and socio-economic medicine relevant to ophthalmology e.g. blind registration or world blindness. In the clinical questions all the sub-speciality areas within ophthalmology are covered including:

Cornea and external eye disease

Cataract

Glaucoma

Medical retina and vitreo-retinal surgery

Strabismus and paediatric ophthalmology

Neuro-ophthalmology

Ocular adnexal and orbital disease

Refractive errors and optics
